C., that as a means of identification, he should carry [redacted] in his pocket [redacted] explained that he never made any of the meetings outside of [redacted]

[redacted] stated that as a result of his not keeping appointments with [redacted] at the above described locations [redacted] telephonically contacted him again in June and they met in isolated locations in the [redacted] area. [redacted] recalled that on one occasion, [redacted] requested him to drive to [redacted] a hilly location between [redacted]

[redacted] pointed out that whenever he met with [redacted] the latter always requested that they drive in [redacted] automobile. During the course of travel, there would never be any conversation on the part of [redacted]. The conversation would take place only after they had left the automobile and were in an open location or in a location where [redacted] was sure no one could overhear. [redacted] advised that [redacted] came to [redacted] to see him once during the month of [redacted]

The last time [redacted] came to [redacted] was on [redacted] 1959. On that date, [redacted] again telephoned [redacted] and asked him to meet him in front of the [redacted] at 4:00 p.m. [redacted] met him and at [redacted] suggestion, they drove in [redacted] car to [redacted] in [redacted] Massachusetts. They sat in the back room of the tavern where no one could hear the conversation. They discussed the matter of the United States maintaining peace in the world [redacted] expressed a fear that it was not the intention of the United States to keep the peace. He asked [redacted] if he did not desire to see that peace was maintained and pointed out that if [] would cooperate with him, [] would thereby be strengthening peace in the world.

In the [] 1959 meeting, [] asked [] to go to Washington, D.C. with [] and arrange to have a party with former friends and employees. [] advised that he did not agree to go to Washington, D.C.

At the completion of the meeting on [] 1959, [] asked [] to meet him on [] 1959 at 2:00 p.m. in front of the [] in [] Massachusetts. He asked [] to bring with him drawings and diagrams pertaining to the [] used by the American government as he recalled them from memory. [] stated that he did not expressly tell [] that he would not meet him [] 1959.

[] asserted that he had never furnished any information to either the [] he met in Mexico or the [] who was contacting him at []. He claimed that as a result of his meetings with these people, he had become very nervous and at times ill over worry as to the consequences of his association with [] representatives. He added, however, that he was willing to cooperate with the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) in the matter of his contacts [].

He said that one Sunday, in the latter part of [redacted] 1959, at approximately 3:00 p.m., he received a phone call at his [redacted] house. The caller said that his name was [redacted] and that he wanted to talk to him about [redacted] in Mexico City. [redacted] asked him to meet him some place. He invited [redacted] to come to his [redacted] home. [redacted] declined to do this, and suggested that they meet at the [redacted] in the center of [redacted]. He drove to [redacted] in his own car and parked in front and got out. As he approached the front of the [redacted] an individual came right up to him and introduced himself only as [redacted]. He acknowledged this greeting, whereupon [redacted] asked him if he would like to discuss [redacted]. He told [redacted] he was not sure since he was now [redacted] and that this changed the picture. However, he agreed to discuss the matter further. [redacted] then got into his car, and they proceeded to [redacted] located in [redacted] Massachusetts, a town adjacent to [redacted]. Upon entering [redacted] went in first and picked a booth in the rear of the tavern. He opened the conversation by discussing the [redacted] and the Ukrainian people. [redacted] thereafter touched upon his work [redacted]. [redacted] asked him if he didn't desire to do something for the cause of peace since present world conditions were in such a turmoil due to the United States' attitude in fostering a cold war. He indicated to [redacted] that he desired to discuss [redacted]. [redacted] ignored this subject, and again asked him if he did not think he could do something for his country, meaning the [redacted]. [redacted] said that he was still considered a [redacted] because of his father's birth there. [redacted] reiterated that he could do something for the cause of peace throughout the world, and stated that he very much wanted him to go to [redacted] in the [redacted] opposite [redacted] to meet some people and talk to them on the following Saturday at 1:00 p.m. [redacted] said that they would have many things to discuss. He told [redacted] that he would try to make it. [redacted] then proceeded to give him all kinds of instructions as to how to proceed to the meeting. He told him to drive down by car, park his car in [redacted] and then take a subway to the [redacted] Station in the [redacted] where he was to leave the subway and walk to [redacted].

[redacted] suggested that he visit the Russian exhibition [redacted] in New York City with [redacted] for which he would pay the expenses. [redacted] said that there was a gigantic model of the University of Moscow displayed which would be interesting. [redacted] also told him that he should go down to [redacted] in pursuit of employment [redacted] and look up old friends from that [redacted] suggested that he arranged to have a party at a motel or hotel for these friends for which [redacted] would provide funds. He stated that in connection with [redacted] request that he go to [redacted] to try to get employment [redacted] asked him to give up his current job. He told [redacted] he could not do that because he had to support [redacted] They then had a long conversation concerning world conditions and [redacted] again reminded him that he was and always will be [redacted] played upon his sympathy for the [redacted] people, and asked him if he was not willing to do something to maintain peace in the world. He said that he could not accurately recall the details of this conversation.

After leaving the [redacted] they stopped at a roadside restaurant on Highway Route [redacted] known as [redacted] They had some refreshments for which [redacted] paid. He then drove [redacted] to the vicinity of the [redacted] Airport on Route [redacted] Massachusetts, where [redacted] left the car. Upon leaving the car, [redacted] placed a white envelope in the glove compartment, stating that it contained something for him. He claimed that he did not open the envelope until he got home, at which time he found it contained [redacted] dollar bills. He said he spent this money for gasoline.

He stated that on [redacted] 1959 a fourth meeting with [redacted] occurred after [redacted] telephoned him at his residence at approximately 5:00 p.m. He said he informed [redacted] he had a virus and would not be able to meet him. [redacted] insisted that he come down for a very brief period. He consented and drove down in his car and met [redacted] who was standing in front of the [redacted] They went to [redacted] in [redacted] where they had two beers. [redacted] again said that he wanted him to go down to [redacted] obtain employment [redacted]

He again voiced his objection to [redacted] that [redacted] which would prevent him from getting the job and that he did not desire to leave his present employment. [redacted] again suggested that he and [redacted] visit [redacted] and have a party to which he should invite some friends. [redacted] said that he would be willing to pay all expenses for this party. [redacted] suggested that he should try and convince [redacted] that his best opportunities would be in Washington, D.C. They then discussed world conditions, and [redacted] indicated to him that he did not think that the United States had any intention of keeping the peace. [redacted] wanted to know if he wasn't interested in seeing what he could do to help preserve the peace. He told [redacted] that he was interested in seeing that there was peace in the world. [redacted] then said that he could do something to further this worthy aim. He asked him to obtain a spiral notebook, and to the best of his knowledge write in this notebook his knowledge of [redacted] [redacted] and draw diagrams of the appearances [redacted] asked him to bring this to the front of [redacted] in [redacted] Massachusetts at 4:00 p.m. on [redacted] 1959. [redacted] told him that if he was not there on that day he would be there the same time on [redacted] 1959. He said that he did not give a definite answer to [redacted] as to whether or not he would comply with this request, claiming that he informed [redacted] he did not know too much about these [redacted] told him to think it over. He said that prior to setting a date for the meeting [redacted] consulted a small datebook which he carried in his coat pocket. He drove [redacted] back to the vicinity of the [redacted] where [redacted] left the car. During the interview of [redacted] 1959 several photographs of [redacted] were displayed to him. He positively identified the photograph of [redacted] as being identical with the person known to him as [redacted] with whom he met in [redacted], Massachusetts.

During the interview of [redacted] 1959 he stated he had informed [redacted] his [redacted] and his [redacted] of the above-mentioned activities. He claimed that somewhere along the line in his meetings with [redacted] he became suspicious that [redacted] was interested in obtaining something from him rather than helping him to obtain [redacted]. He said he had become worried to the extent that it had affected his health. He had [redacted] which he thought were [redacted] so he went to the family doctor and had [redacted] examination.

On [redacted] 1959 he was again interviewed at the [redacted] in [redacted]. This interview was concluded early [redacted] 1959. His story of his association with the Russians was re-examined in detail. He explained his inability to furnish accurate and detailed information as being caused by his tremendous concern for the personal welfare of himself, his [redacted] members of his family and unknown relatives in the [redacted]. The interviewing agents emphatically pointed out to him that he could be liable for prosecution for furnishing false information to the United States Government. He stated he was well aware of this and that he would, if necessary, testify under oath to these events even if it meant going before a Grand Jury. He said in answer to a question as to why he had so many meetings with [redacted] that he thought at first that he would eventually obtain the [redacted] he so ardently desired. He became leery of obtaining success in this endeavor when he met [redacted] for the third time, and [redacted] persisted in his efforts to get him to take a job [redacted]. The [redacted] 1959 meeting convinced him that the Russians were trying to get him to do something against the United States. He became agitated and worried after the [redacted] 1959 meeting that some type of injury might befall himself and his family if he didn't cooperate with the Russians. He discussed his association with [redacted] with [redacted] and [redacted] who offered him no solution to the problem. His [redacted] told him that it was his own problem, and that he should solve it by himself. He finally arrived at the decision to tell his story to the FBI. On [redacted] 1959 he took the day off from his job, and went to the [redacted] Resident Agency of the FBI to unburden himself. He said that the information furnished by him on [redacted] 1959 undoubtedly contained many inaccuracies because he was confused, excited and extremely nervous at the time.

I did. At the picnic the Russian asked me to [redacted] necessary in connection with the [redacted] I made out [redacted] in which I furnished background information concerning myself, including the places [redacted]

[redacted] At the picnic the Russian told me that if a favorable reaction was given to my request for [redacted] he would send a letter to me in care of [redacted] in which he would advise everything was all right. He said the letter would be signed [redacted] Shortly after my return to [redacted] my [redacted] did receive a letter signed [redacted] which said that everything was all right. Shortly thereafter I was [redacted] and returned to the United States. I did not have any further contact with [redacted] in Mexico, nor did I make any further efforts to [redacted] from the Russian government.

"In [redacted] I returned to [redacted], with [redacted] and lived for a short period of time with my [redacted]

"One Sunday afternoon in the latter part of June [redacted] I received a phone call from a man who stated his name was [redacted] He said he wanted to talk to me about [redacted] in Mexico City. I met him in front of the [redacted] in [redacted] Mass., and drove in my car to a tavern in [redacted] Mass. This man was not the same [redacted] I met in Mexico City. We talked about the [redacted] and [redacted] people. He said that he considered me still [redacted] because [redacted] was born in that country. I tried to talk about the [redacted] but he wanted me to go to New York City to [redacted] in the [redacted] on the following [redacted] P.M., to meet some people. He said they would have some things to discuss with me. I told him I would try to make it. He then gave me instructions on how to get to [redacted] He told me that when I entered [redacted] that if he did not meet me some other man would. This man would approach me and say, [redacted] and I was instructed to reply, [redacted] and then give [redacted]

"On [redacted] /59, [redacted] called me at my own residence. I met him in front of the [redacted] in [redacted] again. We walked around the block. He asked me why I had not gone to New York for the meeting and I told him I just could not make it. During our walk [redacted] asked me to attempt to get a job at the [redacted] some information about [redacted] in [redacted] I attempted to get [redacted] but [redacted] would not furnish me any. He told me that if I wanted to see him that I should go to the vicinity of the [redacted] New York, on the [redacted] on any month at [redacted] P.M."

"On [redacted] /59, I again met [redacted], after receiving a telephone call from him. We drove in my car to the [redacted] in [redacted] where we got out of the car and sat in the woods and talked. [redacted] again urged me to try to get a job [redacted] He said he would like me to go down to [redacted] and arrange a party at a motel or hotel for all my friends [redacted] for which he would furnish my expenses. I told him I did not think I could do that because I had a job which I had to keep in order to pay my debts. He said that if I went to [redacted] and actually had the party that not only would he pay the party expenses, but that he would pay me [redacted] which I explained to him I owed [redacted]

"We had a long conversation about world conditions and world peace. I do not recall exactly what I said about these subjects. [redacted] invited me to visit the [redacted] Exposition which was then being held in the [redacted] in [redacted] He said he would pay the expenses for the trip [redacted] After we left [redacted] I drove [redacted] to the vicinity of the [redacted] on [redacted] When he was leaving the car [redacted] placed a white envelope in the glove compartment, stating that it contained something to cover my expenses to the [redacted] Exposition. When I got home I opened the envelope and saw that it contained [redacted] bills. I eventually did go to the Exposition and spent this money on the trip.

"While we were in the woods on [redacted] told me that if I went to [redacted] and got a job I should go to [redacted] on the [redacted] of each month at [redacted] P. M. to get further instructions and information. He said that he would not be at the restaurant, but that another man would see me. He would speak to me and I was to reply to him the same as he told me to do in [redacted] in [redacted].

"On [redacted] /59, I again met [redacted] in [redacted]. We again went to [redacted] in [redacted] again urged me to go to [redacted] and try to get a job [redacted] or any other job in [redacted]. I think he also asked me to try to get a job in [redacted] the third time I met him. I told him I did not want to leave my job at home and that I did not think I could get a job [redacted] because [redacted]. He again talked to me about world conditions and asked me if I wasn't interested in keeping world peace. I said I was interested in peace. He then asked me if I wasn't willing to do something to help world peace. He asked me to get a spiral notobook and to write a summary in it of my knowledge of [redacted] as used by the [redacted] and to draw diagrams of the appearance of [redacted] as best [redacted]. He told me to bring this notobook with me and meet him in front of [redacted] in [redacted], at [redacted] o'clock in the afternoon on [redacted]. I did not give him a definite answer as to whether I would go along with his request and told him I would think it over.

"In my associations with [redacted] I thought that these meetings would help me [redacted]. I became a little suspicious that [redacted] would ever [redacted] about the third time I met [redacted] I got kind of worried because he kept asking me to get a job [redacted]. I remember I never actually told him that I worked [redacted] but rather that I had worked in the [redacted]. After meeting [redacted] on [redacted] 1959 I became convinced that [redacted] and the Russians were trying to get me to do something against the United States. I was worried and scared that something might happen to me or members of my family. I finally decided that I was involved in something serious and that I should tell the FBI about my associations with [redacted] which I first did on [redacted] 1959.

"Special Agents [redacted] and [redacted] have shown me numerous photographs of men which they identified as being [redacted]. I have identified one of these photographs as being that of [redacted] who met me four times in [redacted].

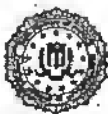

On [redacted] 1959, he identified a photograph of a [redacted] as the [redacted] who had met with him in [redacted] by writing on the back of the photograph the following:

"This is a photograph of the man known to me as [redacted] who I met in [redacted] on four occasions."

He signed his name and dated it [redacted] 1959.
